

Sundays7pm.com webStats

For Q1 (First Quarter 2026). From January, 31 2026 to March 31, 2026

I will use the analogy of basketball to explain my philosophy of webStats¹.

Basically, it is website statistics that anyone can understand.

Basketball is a team sport. But each player plays a role or roles. Champions are made with making the best of the players you got. The greats always believed that they can will their team to victory. And that level of self-confidence, drive and discipline is forged in the before and after hours. Whether you are building a basketball dynasty or successful business enterprise or leading your team to victory you need to play the cards you are dealt well. The great teams have mental, emotional and physical fortitude to weather the storms of the situation or life.

Moral of the story: If you see others being successful you can too. With planning, patience and perseverance. All great champions find a way to get themselves motivated and rally their team to push their self-imposed limits and overcome them.

To succeed in anything, you need large heaping of discipline, a high stack of imagination and dash of good luck.

Now I will move on. I hope this was inspirational and motivational.

Let us get to nitty-gritty.

¹ webStats is a term I coined for this report. It means Website Statistics. It is a field in development. I hope I can keep it clear and simple. Let us begin!

To go from the Good to Great by the author Jim Collins² is about getting the right people in the rights seats on the bus.

Goal

My goal is to make this report as easy to read and understand that a kid to adult can read it and understand the main points and the areas of growth.

Mission Statement

My mission is to make a small change on how we value websites and content. In the dawn of the AI Age and second dot Ai dot coms I will try to create an easy way to evaluate website valuations based on Websites as Businesses.

As Benjamin Graham wrote in the “Intelligent Investor” Graham asserted that valuations of stocks are most accurate when the stocks are most businesslike. The four tenets of Graham’s Value Investing Philosophy and practice are:³

1. Make Mr. Market your friend.
2. Keep a margin of safety.
3. Treat every stock as a Business.
4. Calculate Intrinsic value.

These are some of the relevant data points that I have organized and shared with you today. I hope you continue to find value, knowledge and a sprinkle of wisdom from my efforts. These efforts did not come easy. In high school, I was a slacker and played basketball for at least 4 or more hours a day. I honed my basketball skills during that time. And I had a good stretch for 10 years. Those are fond memories of a simpler life. I had no grand ambitions or political interest. Yet, after bouncing around in the Borough of Manhattan Community College I knew If I was going to get a real college education and fulfill my dream of being a good physician. I would have to transfer out and I attended and graduated from Brooklyn College.

My one goal was to be a politician. So, my college friend, recommended that I try some political science classes. Once I got into debates in the class. I was in my element. That led me to student government and my role today as editor and webStatican for Sundays7pm.com. This is a dream come true.

My background in high school html programming was very good. Yet, I walked away from computers except as a hobbyist. In college, I created bcusl.com which stood for "Brooklyn College United Student's League." Bcusl.com was my secret gizmo to get my into the Student Government Presidency. Which I won by 22 votes, or so the story goes. It was a bitter election and we were all worse off for it. I rather would have preferred to lose than to win like that.

So, as my USL members partied that night after winning the election. I packed my things and went straight home. No partying. No rowdiness. No gloating.

It was the emptiest feeling in the world. I was truly alone. Left to my own thoughts. I went home to my family and went to rest. Because I knew I would have a political disadvantage on my hands. I apologize if you suffered from that election. It was out of my hands. The troublemakers disappeared from the scene.

What I did learn from that experience was my political motto: "When is a Win not a win. When It is a loss." Also, I learned what freedom really was I had to figure my life on my own and start over. That was the greatest adventure up until then so far. Even though this story is anecdotal. It taught me lessons that I forgot.

Study and train harder than anyone else. Excellence is a state of mind. Tomorrow the Sun will rise again and you can start over. My life has been a historical flashpoint of struggle and the will to succeed. In the future, I hope to learn more from my mistakes and limit my time on unessential activities. At my age, people have had a full life. I am happily single and my interests are a wide cornucopia of activities that fill my day. I am still looking for that secret to unlock my true potential. And you know what I learned is that we each have that potential and seeds of greatness in us. If only we would act when we have done all our homework and thought experiments. So that is the political economy and political science of the opportunity cost of life.

I hope I was not too boring in this webStats for the First Quarter of 2026. In review, I highlighted some key facts and figures that I hope provide clarity and understanding to you for what has occurred over the last three months here at Sundays7pm.com.

I will not always get it right. However, if I am wrong, I plan to be the first to admit it and move on despite the obstacles. Easier said than done.

These numbers and information highlights the importance of knowing your audience and keeping informed of trends and zeitgeist of these times.

In the final analysis, quantifying and understanding the quality of the craftsmanship of running a website is critical to ensure you reach your success destination. Remember to have fun along the way. It is the lives you touch and the people you help that will mean more to you than material success.

Thank you for taking the time to listen to an old grey beard like me.

If you found this insightful then please share your light with the world.
