

In Memoriam

Sam Neill captured our imagination with a film called Jurassic Park. That movie brought this childhood dreams come true. I was a sponge at the library for Mostly one topic as a 4 year old.

Dinosaurs.

They captured my imagination and my heart. What were these creatures. I never saw one but I read the whole section of the Dinosaur books.

And here comes Dr. Alan Grant, the character that epitomizes every boyhood dream of meeting the dinosaurs. The first real scene CGI, or Computer Generated Images, blew us all away.

That movie created the next generation of movie thrill seekers.

Sam Neill. Will always remember of movie magic. That little stardust that cinema to remain a shared experience.

Even though technology changes the fact the human touch and element can be imitated but not replicated by AI.

I think that one of the greatest films of our generation. And CGI is important. But it is the characters that brought the story to life.

Today, I remember a man whose done more for dinosaurs than any movie star and the cast than one of our generation.

Thank you Mr. Sam Neill.

Godspeed

Sincerely,

Mohammed Lodhi Hussain
