

The democrats we need the best and the brightest indeed. However, morality, decency and integrity are the common values we need to ground our future on.

The torched earth philosophy of the democratic primary. Might get on the airwaves, social media and a second generation of mass media TV and radio.

First let's identify the winners, populist, race-baiting socialists who favor producing babies for building out the future voters. This may seem a logical leap forward for these occultists.

However, they forgot to mention house you are raised at home is a great indicator how you behave in classroom, boardroom or worse. In negative environment most of these at risk children will be exposed to ideas and concepts that will not develop their full potential unless intervention takes place.

Some might disagree. That is fair, Let's look at other possibility.

Namly, the trauma is so bad to turn a person a normal and productive members of society. I know they have many hurdles against them. As I am paraphrasing the quote "The tree that stands alone in a forest grows the tallest.

I believe that we are going someplace new from the Democrat party. A party that lead the way on equal rights, social safety networks and creating jobs for all.

Republican and Democrats. The independents want a seat at the table. However, as we started this brief common sense is derived from the common individual's rights to truly live in capitalists sand box. Eventually these fringe disruptors' will be absorbed by one party or another.

If you prefer to get something across the finish that is sound and citizen centered. I suggest each party offer olive branch to one another.

And that is my two cents. Live long and happy.
