

ELECTION INSIGHT 2026, So far.

GOP on Shaky ground

So, this the GOP Campaign platform, below, that I would highlight to potential voters for democrats to win-win around the nation and on November 3, 2026, as far as we are scheduled.

- Review all policy changes that have been painful to your constituents by a GOP-Led Government.
- With candid candor, acknowledge if they did right, if applicable, in a bipartisan way.
- Putting women, mothers, expectant mothers, and girls at risk with cuts to planned parenthood to further put burdens on the backs of Stronger populace.
- Cutting Head start nutritional program for children and parents who rely on Headstart services.
- cut educational and intellectual and non-partisan PBS and NPR funding for political reprisal.

- Has Put a foreclosure sign on the backs of retirees, the disabled, poor, middle class and educated individuals and families for indentured servitude to the Federal government and it's miscreants.
- Has not heeded the concerns of all electorate for the sake of bailouts of cottage industries and dying industries. To the detriment to local and regional economies.
- Went to clean up a swamp and became THE GOP Swamp Thing¹
- Created environmental mismanagement for the sake of profits: Data centers, eliminating common sense investments in a sustainable future. Zero Carbon goals eliminated.

NOTE: Created a quagmire sideshow mess. Yes, redundancy is a thing in the 2026 midterms.

I speculate by observation, the Motto: fleecing for profit and self-indulgence at the expense of foreign and domestic policy.

Although, I still like the guy's bravado and spunk.

However, running against a lame duck president in his final term, unless him and another former Executive candidate do a rematches-rematch continue to uproot the levers of democracy.

The tendency will be too run as anti-establishment candidate. It may work.

However, America is in need of an Uplifter-in-Chief. Be Wary of the pitfalls of politic campaigning by demonizing your opponent. Can, may or will have a counter effect with the electorate. Feeding into the Apathy that midterms, historically painstakingly endured. A milder approach highlighting your ambitions, policy works and improving the lives not in a dramatic or erratic patchwork of policy templates. But as a firm conviction. That doing the right thing will keep you on stable political footing.

The best thing you can do at this point is a simple and minimalist campaign strategy. The governing party, in election cycles have a tendency to overdo it and overreach politically. Swinging the political pendulum in favor of the opposing party. Thereby, creating momentum for you to make your case.

Just like moisturizing soap. A campaign needs to be effective and gentle. A strategy of a deluge of communications barrages tend to weaken voters likelihood to go to the polls.

A maxim of life is “people want to buy, not to be sold something.” As I grew up honing that adage in my life.

Politics is a personal thing. Treat each voter as the make or break vote. And “Go the extra mile” as cliché as it may seem. It is a sure fire way to take the high road and win elections. Governing is another matter. Which even I need to think clairvoyantly about.

The rancor that the Majority party has created will be tested at the Polls. It is up to each one of us. Whether in Public or Private life. To keep them honest.

With regards to SCOTUS Juris Prudence ideology, faith and philosophy through a bench weighted opinions.

All parties including first party witnesses and the accuser and the accused,
They can plead the 5th in case of self-incrimination, should be testifying under Oath when they bring their case to the Supreme Court of the United States of America.

These are NEW problems and require NEW solutions. Shoehorning or using precedent to justify your opinions can be perceived as borderline favoritism.
Whether true or not. An open air policy is best for all involved.

It would be a tremendous civics lessons for generations and set a benchmark of excellence. In my humble opinion.

Even the plaintiff and Defense's named parties. It is no longer suitable, appropriate and reasonable juris prudence for the legal team to protect their client's without cross-examination or testimony. If Congress can subpoena individuals.

Then why, that not the procedure in the judiciary?

Since, in this extraordinary cases we have unchecks and imbalances of government. SCOTUS cannot and was never intended to be the King Maker decision of last resort.

SCOTUS members have taken it on their own to overrule and Veto the constitutional protections transcribed and inked in the United States of America Constitution. It was by the heroes of the Homeland who stood outnumbered against a British Monarchy that tried to break the backs of the American Colonies with the Stamp Act and what did we do We through the biggest Tea party in Boston, Massachusetts.

Are we destined to repeat the same injustices at home, 250 years later, today?

Is this what Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Hamilton, Madison and the Founding Father's fought for?

Is this a judiciary in the same gold standard of Chief Justice John Marshall?

Or has it capitulated to the Dark side? Or a sheep in wolves clothing?

Are there opinions tied to Political beliefs or creed versus the Legal question at hand.

By our founding fathers and the founding families that were the backbone of our fledgling Nation, irrespective of authority, judicial restraint and political bias.

Therefore, A legislative, executive and judiciary stacking the odds against it is own duties. To uphold the values of Democracy and representative government.

The reality is right now the Judiciary is no longer a co-equal branch of the United States government. But has become a legislative body. Judicial review, Spearheaded by The First Chief Justice John Marshall was a review of cases brought to the courts. What we have today is not judicial review but policy making. The Courts have taken the slippery slope of a legislative body without being duly-elected and political appointees, in total.

Judicial invention is the name of the game today. Where the Constitutions is not interpreted but targeted to benefit the governing interests or not.

There lifetime appointments and covert nature denies the majority of American citizens, patriots and citizens the right to access to primary sources of the case hearings.

In addition, I think it would be more appropiate for the sake of Democracy and faith in government that open meetings posted online with ease of access to every man, woman and child and anyone else should be able to watch live, recorded and transcribed and archived in reasonable time to make a decision.

Moreover, A new virtual library using META's METAVERSE type technology `should bring the 3d world to life. In schools and Libraries. This access must be non-prohibitive, money wise, travel wise and any other wisdom or barrier to entry.

If this is not possible, then I would suggest that the courts be prohibited from eroding American individuals rights and liberties inalienable in nature and provided by God.

That is my two political pennies worth of advice. This is more of living document that may or may not be adopted, watered downed, or tabled indefinitely.

But it is my truth.

A Proposal path for Democratic Candidates in the Near Term

Many of you will seek the highest office in the land The Presidency of the United States of America.

It is an admirable and appropriate to run for love of country and to serve the Great American's that will be the electorate.

However, I have seen many President's since I was born Starting with President Ronald Reagan to the current administration. I read up a little in school and college and sorts.

I would like to share some ideas, perspectives and observations I have absorbed from those early childhood stay up all night to hear the results of election night results. Except when we had the Florida's Hanging Chad's.

That was a consequential verdict from SCOTUS.

I went off on a tangent.

Sorry.

If I were running for the presidency, these are some of the political tidbits, I would remind myself each day. May the help you along the way. Take what you want or disregard any and all if you want. I am just getting the brainstorming going.

- Find your lightning rod issues.
- Identify the message that resonates and registers with your audience.
- Create presence during presentations.
- Campaigning can be more play then a grind. Enjoy the process.
- Take time for leisure and relaxation. You will get better ideas.
- Trust and develop your intuition and political antennae.
- Now is time to listen. Not in a town hall prepared format but in a conversational tone.
- The voters will tell you what their major issues are.
- It's those unpopular issues that can be clutch in the 4th quarter of the political season.
- Wait for political lightning to strike. I mean. One day an idea, talk or inspiration will come to you on the campaign trail. Trust your gut even if everyone around you think it is outlandish and will never work. That is the idea that will shape your campaign and give you clarity, direction and magnitude during your campaign. Speeches, stumps and audience.

- The media landscape is about to shift for the dominate party. Money will always influence our elections. But this people powered policy-making.
- A new generation of voters need a new type of candidate. Independent and relatable. Political perception or optics are important. But not to be a focal point. I would stress a calm natural be yourself demeanor.
- To solve the NEW world's problems, you need NEW world solutions.
- Bring expertise across the board.
- Humility, integrity and friendships will falter and prosper in good and bad times. Yet character and loyalty are right before your eyes if you make an effort, remove self-interest and serve others.
